About SCI

SCI is an inter-disciplinary forum connecting scientists and business people to advance the commercial application of chemistry and related sciences.

Our aim is to share and exchange information, ideas, innovations and research, in chemistry in its widest sense.

SCI holds in great importance the support of people at the start of their careers – tomorrows leaders.

SCI Early Career Support: Day of Science and Careers Scotland

Today is a career event linking yourselves with careers in industry, large and small, and academia.

- bring together those of you starting out with those in their chosen career path.
- gain personal experience of careers and how to get there.

Pleased to be partnered by the University of Aberdeen.

Day of Science and Careers Scotland

Aims and Objectives

During and after today's meeting we'd like you to:

- Be informed about the wide range of careers in science based academia and industry
- Interact and network informally about careers
- Receive assistance to help you to make an informed career choice
- Advise SCI what support would be useful to help early career people
